Pools and the Marketing of Grain

The country elevators use the present marketing system because experience and numerous investigations have proved it to be the best and cheapest way of handling and marketing Canada's wheat.

The Western Pools, who are members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, state that they use its facilities because they have no other alternative. They have other alternatives. They could:

- Sell direct to Canadian exporters;
- Sell direct to overseas millers;
- Sell direct to overseas importers;
- Establish their own Pool Exchange.

They do none of these things, because they know that the open market, of all systems tried to date, affords the farmer the best price and the best protection. In other words, they use their memberships in the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in the same manner as the other country elevator companies use theirs, and for exactly the same reasons.

It may be that some better system can and will be evolved by conference, investigation or experiment. If any other system of marketing which will prove of greater benefit to the farmer can be evolved, it will receive its earliest and strongest support from the elevator companies whose pride it is to have been in the vanguard of service to the farmers of the West for more than thirty years.

Thou Shalt Not Love

—A NOVEL BY—
 GEORGIA GRAIG

As their eyes met she had a premonition that she and this blonde representative of the aristocracy of old New York were fated to clash more than once. Thinly veiled antagonism clashed between them, almost a thing you could see, instead of merely feel, in its intensity. Starr sensed the trouble with Stephanie at once. The girl was jealous of Michael Fairbourne's attentions to "Play-Girl," and now that she had seen Starr, all Michael's protests that his interest was purely in his firm's behalf were under scrutiny by Stephanie, who was inclined to have thoughts of her own on the subject.

Starr's mocking smile deepened. Her supercilious pose was heightened. There was a hint of devilment in her voice as she answered:

"I am interested to meet you, too, Miss Dale. Hassan—oh, dear, will I never remember to say Michael—has told me so much about you."

For a second naked venom burned in Stephanie's blue eyes. She flung at Michael in a brilliant voice:

"Better be careful to whom you speak of me, Mike, darling. I certainly don't want to be put between the covers of one of Starr Ellison's 'true confessions'!"

Starr caught her breath sharply, as though she had been slapped in the face. She closed her eyes, and on opening them, all at once she found herself alone. Stephanie had turned away unceremoniously. Someone had claimed Michael's attention for the moment. Starr looked round, bewildered.

A voice caught her ears. Stephanie's frosty voice. Deliberately loud, so that Starr could not help overhearing. Stephanie was saying to somebody:

"I think it's simply terrible that poor Mike has to be associated with creatures of her type, even though it's merely in a business way. His firm is handling her book, you know, and they've insisted on his attending to her publicity. . . . As if she needed any more! But Mike's so clever . . . And of course he's expected to be nice to her on the firm's account, sort of act as a mascot, or something, as it were. . . . But, my dear, it's perfectly galling when decent people have to pander to a common adventuress!"

CHAPTER VII.

Starr flushed to the very roots of her hair. So that was the story Michael had told Stephanie! Her mouth set in a bitter straight line. She might have known. Though surely Michael owed a shred more gallantry than that to the girl who was helping him carry out his fantastic whim? No matter how little he knew of her—or cared to know. No matter what he imagined her previous life had been. He should have some little consideration for her. If his book made him rich enough to marry Stephanie Dale, she of the stiff-necked aristocracy, it would be partly because of the brief part played in his life by Starr Ellison.

Starr was jolted out of her temporary embarrassment, her moment of quick resentment, by a man's voice. At first she thought it was Michael. But the eyes looking down into hers were as black as her own, instead of gray. The face was leaner, and the hair incredibly sleek, where Michael's black hair had an arresting wavy.

The man smiling at her said: "I believe I'm the only man here who hasn't been introduced to you. I'm beginning to wonder if the oversight isn't deliberate."

Starr recognized him. True, she had not met him, but she remembered Michael saying:

"See that chap over there—dark-complexioned chap with a Menjou look? That's Lance Marlowe. If my book had been 'Play-Boy' instead of 'Play-Girl,' Lance is the very type I would have picked. He's tailor-made for the part. He's been a play-boy

IN BED FOR WEEKS WITH BACKACHE

Quick Relief With Kruschen

It was advice from her mother that led this woman to take Kruschen Salts for her backache, and before she had finished the first bottle she was feeling better. This is the letter she wrote to me:

"About this time last year I had severe pains in my back and was prostrate for three weeks. I could not even rise in bed. I tried several well-known remedies, but to no avail. Then I wrote to my mother telling her of my trouble. She wrote to me by return of post urging me to try Kruschen Salts. I immediately bought a bottle and I can truthfully say before I had taken the fifth dose could sit up. I kept on taking them and in less than two weeks I was about again. I am never without Kruschen now."—(Mrs. A.G.)

Unless the kidneys function properly, certain acid wastes, instead of being expelled, are allowed to pollute the blood-stream and produce troublesome symptoms: backache, rheumatism, and excessive fatigues. Kruschen Salts is an excellent diuretic or kidney aperient, valuable in assisting the kidneys to excrete acid impurities.

For twenty years—always will be, I guess.

"I don't suppose he ever found any good reason for being anything else, and it seems to have been wished on him. His father left him a fortune. He has a yacht, a string of polo ponies, all that sort of stuff, but so far as anybody knows he has never done an honest day's work in his life. Or any other kind. His favorite indoor sport is buying diamonds for his current light of love, and they come and go in quick procession. Also, and this is important in the eyes of a good many New Yorkers who still cling to such outmoded ideas as decency, as far as the honor and chastity of women are concerned he is probably the most dangerous man in New York!"

Starr felt a little tinge of excitement when the man whom Michael had so stochastically characterized spoke to her. It was a long moment before she answered his greeting. And then her reply was in keeping with the role she was playing.

She drew, with a slow smile, as her long eyes lifted to him lazily: "Perhaps Michael believes in saving the best for the last."

Lance suggested: "Or perhaps he is not unaware that a friendship unconventionally begun is always all the more thrilling."

Starr laughed, and Lance hurried on, his black eyes burning down at her: "Now that we have met, am I not going to have the opportunity for you to tell me all about yourself?"

Starr's eyes dropped demurely, then she lifted them—for the scant fraction of a second to say: "There's nothing left to tell about me—that everybody doesn't already know. . . . I might begin at the beginning, though, and tell you I'm free, white, and twenty-one, and—"

"Adorable!" whispered Lance, his voice husky. "Will you dance with me?"

Starr held up her arms and they glided into a dance. He was pleasant to dance with, lithe and graceful, and when the music lilted from a waltz into the haunting throb of a rumba, with the waves of the Spanish music holding in its depths the suggestion of the emotional pleading of love in a setting of moonlit balconies and patios inside rosy walls, slow-eyed sonorities with mantillas, Starr's steps fitted perfectly into Lance's skilled footwork. Her own perfection was the result of Michael's teaching.

Lance's sleek black head bent closely over hers.

"How has such a girl as you ever managed so long to remain ignorant? If you've been anywhere I've been, you've certainly been hiding behind dark glasses."

"Sometimes I wear a long gray beard," Starr murmured.

"And now?"

"Oh, the usual answer," Starr whispered lightly. "It was shown to me plainly how greatly it would be to my advantage to take off my mask. Money, dear man. . . . My appetite for balschish is insatiable, I assure you."

Lance laughed softly. "Money! What a conversation for such a glorious dance! And here I am trying to think of enough words to try to tell you how gorgeous you are—you, with your Cleopatra eyes, and—"

"—and—" his head bent lower as he whispered—"your adorable red lips that nobody knows better than you were made for a hundred kisses. . . ."

Starr drew back from him a little and looked up into his eyes. Her whisper seemed shocked.

"Only a hundred?" she asked.

"And I had thought—"

"Just the appetizer, my dear," Lance laughed. "There would be a full menu ahead."

Starr studied the man as they danced. His face was not unpleasant. He had a full, rather sensuous mouth, and the bright, roving eyes of a restless pleasure seeker. At such close range she could not see the tiny lines of dissipation marking his well-shaped features, yet even so he looked younger than his years.

She wondered how she was doing with her verbal fencing with him. Was she saying what might be expected of her? The most dangerous man in New York! Well, it was an apt meeting. Did she not bear the reputation of being the most dangerous woman? Play-Boy and—Play-Girl!

They talked a great deal as they danced, and it was a relief to bandy light chatter with someone who skimmed over the surface of life. The lit with Stephanie; the long hours during which she was being coached for her part by Michael; the near, dizzy attraction of Michael—all had combined to stir emotions deeper than Starr Ellison had any right to feel. She must not let herself feel too deeply about anything. Her time was too short, and feelings could be so poignant.

Lance Marlowe was exactly the right antidote for her. He was incapable of feeling deeply. He was Starr was instinctively certain. The world for him was not what it was to most. It was his playground. That was the way it must be for her. It had all been settled. For Starr Ellison the world must be her playground—for her brief six months!

It came to Starr all at once that Lance Marlowe was one man who could show her how to crowd a lifetime of thrills and excitement into every single day, if she would let him.

He was saying, as they swept down the long glittering floor of the ballroom:

"I still can't see, all joking aside, why you've remained anonymous so long. Were you afraid? No—" he shook his head—"Now that I've seen you I can't believe that's the reason."

It must have been out of conservatism, for the less fortunate sisters whose pale beauty is dimmed by her Egyptian princess brilliance, Starr. There's no need for all that Egyptian hush in my case. I'd have known it for the truth no matter where I saw you, nor under what circumstances." He laughed, with a hint of understanding, evaluation in his voice. "But how you're going to make them all suffer now!"

It was a charming thing for a man to say, but Starr thought the words passed his lips just a little too glibly. She shot him an amused glance from beneath her long, slanting lashes.

"I suppose that's your usual line for every new woman you meet?"

Make Good Mechanics

Esquimaux Have Considerable Aptitude States Bishop Of Arctic

Telling of an Eskimo convicted of murder and serving five years at the R.C.M.P. barracks, Aklavik, who is "perfectly human," looks after the inspector's child when his wife is busy, and is declared by her to be "the best nurse I could get anywhere." Rt. Rev. Dr. Archibald L. Fleming, Anglican bishop of the Arctic, related a number of incidents and observations of his recent tour of his huge diocese, one-third the entire land area of Canada.

The bishop, whose domain comprises 2,250,000 square miles, land and water, travelled 4,579 miles by air, 4,000 by railway and 900 by water, averaging 100 miles a day despite 16 days' delay at Herschel Island, and visited every mission except Baffurast Inland and Cambridge, where the ice and snow were impossible to penetrate.

While Indians make better carpenters, the Eskimo have considerable mechanical aptitude, said the bishop, telling of losing the second-hand of his watch and having it replaced by Taylor Pokiak, an Eskimo at Tuktoyaktuk, after every white man he had asked to repair it had had to confess inability, and of having his camera repaired by John Kaogak of Herschel Island. Another time he travelled in a motor boat belonging to an Eskimo who, when a cylinder-head had cracked, had repaired it with a strip of canvas and some wire, "and it worked fine."

Natives are now being trained as carpenters, and the new school for 100 children at Aklavik, now the largest building in the empire north of the Arctic Circle, has been built entirely by natives under a master carpenter, Thomas Summers, of Toronto. The new school, which is 130 by 75 feet, has 12 teachers, and the principal is Rev. H. Sherman Shepherd, of Halifax.

The new hospital at Aklavik, replacing the one burned down in April, is well under way, the bishop said, and when completed will have 48 beds, so arranged that normally only 24 will be available, the other 24 being cut off to save fuel. Modern operating tables and equipment are being installed, and it is hoped that contributions will make possible up-to-date X-ray equipment by the opening.

If we cannot work out the will of God where he has placed us, then why has He placed us there?

Here and There

Famous officers of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Sir John A. Macdonald, Prime Minister of Canada, arrived at Revelstoke recently and held a series of historic meetings. Among them were Donald A. Smith, George Stephen, James J. Hill, Van Horne and Sir Alexander Mackenzie. The party actually comprised a group of film players portraying the historic characters in the tense board-room sequence of "The Great Barrier." Grummet British picture depicting the strenuous railway construction days fifty years ago.

Says Geo. Sarazen, one time world's champion golfer, writing of the Reef Springs Hotel course at the famous resort in the Rockies:—"That course of golf is everything you said. Miss Helen Hicks and I played it several times at the hotel and we were beaten. With a huge gallery it was very funny to see a lady simply couldn't keep our minds on the game—the scenery was simply too much."

The first 1937 world cruise to see out from New York will be the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain which will sail January 9 for a voyage of 125 days, covering 20,000 miles and visiting 20 ports in 22 different countries. Among their countries are Palestine, Egypt, India, Ceylon, Malay Archipelago, the Philippines, China, Japan, Hawaii and back to New York via California, the Panama Canal and Havana.

Canada's first complete semi-streamlined air-conditioned train, built for the Canadian Pacific Railway, now in operation with four units in different parts of the Dominion, has been placed on inspection at a number of points across the country and has aroused high praise and enthusiasm on the part of the hundreds of thousands of Canadians who have seen it. In Montreal alone 60,000 spectators went through it in the four days it was on inspection at the Windsor station and the same interest was displayed everywhere else. These units will be in operation between Toronto and Detroit, Montreal and Quebec, and Edmonton and Calgary.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other delegates to the League of Nations Conference at Geneva sailed from Quebec in September in the Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Britain. Accompanying the Premier was Hon. Raul Dandurand, Government leader in the Senate and Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor.

Captain George Gould, now skipper of the Empress of Russia, made his first trip as master of the vessel early in September. It is his first command of a Pacific Empress, though he has served the first in all official capacities from fourth officer to staff-captain during the past 22 years.

Last of three motor parties visiting Canada this year, 11 British automobiles arrived recently at Quebec on the Empress of Britain. The motorcade under the organizer Graham Lyons, drove from Quebec to Montreal and will visit Ottawa, Toronto, London, Detroit, Cleveland, Washington and New York.

Amendment to to the Provincial Lands Act

In an interview granted to the press by the Hon. C. C. Ross, Minister of Lands and Mines, he mentioned the problems confronting the purchaser of School Lands, many of whom bought at a time when the financial returns from farm produce was very much in excess of to-day's prices.

The Minister stated that since taking charge of the Department he has been giving considerable thought to the situation and having decided upon the necessity of granting some specific form of relief, action has been taken by proclamation to reduce the interest on the unique instalments of the contracts from six (6) per cent to four (4) per cent, and interest on arrears from seven (7) per cent to five (5) per cent.

The Minister that the most outstanding part of the proclamation deals with the assistance that will be given to the purchasers who bought at the peak of prices and who find that through depletion of their resources, they are unable to comply with the terms of the contract. Such purchasers will have the right to make application to the Registrar of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act for a compromise, and the Minister explained that the Department would write each contract holder as to how the purchaser should proceed if he wishes to take advantage of the legislation.

Sales that have been cancelled since September 30th, 1930, may be refunded if the land is available, and such settlers will have the same privilege to bring their cases before the Registrar for a compromise or reduction in the terms of the contracts.

The Minister pointed out that this action is consistent with the stand taken by the Government at the recent session in dealing with the reduction and settlement of outstanding debts. Those settlers wishing to obtain advantage of these concessions would, he stated, be well advised to take immediate action so that they may secure the full benefit offered by these amendments.

Mr. John Duncan and son, Ewart who moved to the Lacomb district some two years ago, were visitors here last week.

ROYAL MONTREAL REGIMENT TO ERECT MEMORIAL TABLET

A committee of past commanding officers, and others of the Royal Montreal Regiment, have undertaken the creation of a memorial tablet to the officers and men of the regiment who gave their lives in its service during the Great War.

The tablet will be of bronze and will have a receptacle in its base for a Book of Memory in which will be inscribed on parchment the names of all of those to whom the tablet is dedicated. Embodied in the design will be the crests of the 14 Battalion, The Royal Montreal Regiment, the 23 Reserve Battalion and the 88 Westmount Rifles.

The tablet will be erected within the regiment's armoury, which was also erected and dedicated as a memorial to those who made the supreme sacrifice. The unveiling of the memorial tablet will take place on Sunday, November 8 this year, following a reunion of the regiment. In order that ex-members of the Royal Montreal Regiment, now scattered throughout Canada, may have an opportunity to participate in the erection of the memorial to their fallen comrades, a subscription list is now open. Contributions should be sent to the Honorary Treasurer, Capt. W. A. Fowler, P. O. Box 352, Station B, Montreal.

THERE ARE DIFFERENCES

Is there any difference between Pool elevators and the elevator companies? The latter seem anxious to prove that both are the same, but there are several essential differences.

1. Alberta Pool Elevators are the property of 43,000 Alberta grain producers. They are built for service and not for profit. This is not the case with line elevator companies.

2. The finances and operations of Pool elevators are an open book. Each year they are scrutinized by seventy delegates who are representatives of the producers. The detailed operations of the whole system and of each and every Pool elevator are thus obtainable from elected delegates. Is there one line elevator company who will provide customers with such information?

3. The Pools use the grain exchange. But this does not imply an identical attitude towards that organization. The Pools believe that the demonstrated weakness of the speculative system during the depression had a serious reflection in the collapse of agriculture, and that a national wheat board would have offered greater protection. The line elevator companies are not in favour of a national wheat board and never were. John I. McFarland, who conducted stabilization of wheat prices for five years, testified: "Theoretically the open futures system is an ideal system for the handling of wheat, if it works; but when it fails to function, as it has failed, because of world-wide subsidies, over-supply and absence of speculators to carry the hedges, then my sympathy leans entirely toward the producer and his protection."

4. The Pools believe the Canadian wheat producers should be given assistance and protection to as great a degree as at other interests in Canada. The Pools maintain that agriculture is Canada's most important industry and cannot be neglected. The grain trade, on the other hand, continually campaigned for marketing Canada's wheat at "world prices."

5. The grain trade say that the Pools' operations cost millions. That is a pure fabrication. Under the McFarland stabilization operations Canadian farmers produced, and marketed the surpluses of wheat crops totalling more than one billion bushels, and Canadian prices were maintained at a substantially higher level than those of competing countries. For months the Canadian premiums ran as high as five a bushel over prices of competitive wheat.

6. The Pools believe that agriculture needs an aggressive co-operative organization supporting its interests and reflecting the expressed wishes of producers and not subservient to vested interest. The line elevator companies ARE vested interests.

7. The line elevator companies resent being designated as a "family compact", but the very advertisement denying this relationship was a joint affair and tends to substantiate the statement.
